DEAR SPORT OSSI AND JAPAN FRIEND, DEAR READER!

Thank you very much for your interest in my books. They are neither picture books nor travel guides but rather tales from my travels that brought me to my origins. My books are written with passion – and some readers will also be able to read between the lines.

As the first Austrian and Tiroler to visit all 88 Shikoku temples, on foot, meter for meter, step for step I was happily able to complete the circle. I wandered over mountains, through valleys and villages and along the coast. My book retells my travels in a simple and entertaining fashion following in the footsteps of Kobo Daishi.

"On the Kobo Daishi trail"

After my first publication in 2008 (independent publication on March 15th 2008) which was the first German language book of its kind in Europe, my second publication, the novel "Kobo Daishis Treasure" followed in March 2010 at the Leipzig book fair.

EXCERPT FROM "KOBO DAISHIS TREASURE"

Her last words were the key that unlocked the secret to the treasure of KOBO DAISHI.

The secret had been closely guarded for decades, waiting one day for the foreigner who had travelled from afar on his pilgrimage. This was the vision of the temple guardian. I still believe that I could feel the hate that shooting towards me as an elderly priest entered the room and realized what had occurred. He asked me what the old priestess had said to me and I felt as if an ice cold fist had taken hold of my heart. The priests apprentice suddenly stepped forward between us and introduced the elder as ENZO, the second in command in the temple. It would not be the last time that this bald headed, but very pretty girl apprentice would rescue me. Our destinies were forged from this moment on.

Since I had arrived at Shikoku, I felt as if I was being led by an invisible force. Everything seemed to be predestined. Was I just a puppet in the power struggle between the treasure hunters from the beginning? Suddenly everything started spinning, first slowly and then increasingly racing. I don't recall anymore how I sank in to KORENS arms. You are in great danger here, I heard her whisper in my ear... danger.... danger!
